Krill Oil

What is Krill Oil?

Derived from shellfish, the two most fundamental ingredients in Krill Oil are Omega-3 fatty acids such as those contained in fish oil and phospholipid-derived fatty acids (PLFA) sometimes referred to as marine lecithin-which readily dissolve in water. EPA (Eicosapentaenoic acid) and DHA (Docosahexaenoic acid) oils are also both important components of Krill Oil.

Our PURE ANTARCTIC KRILL OIL is sustainably sourced from Euphausia Superba and remember; it has no fishy aftertaste!

What Is The Difference Between Fish Oil & Krill Oil?

While Fish Oil supplements are a derivative of fatty fish such as sardines and salmon, Krill Oil is extracted from small shrimp-type crustaceans; in other words made from shellfish. Both contain EPA and DHA Omega-3 fatty acids but the strength of these oils is usually lower in Krill Oil because of the high content of phospholipid-derived fatty acids (PLFA) which are water soluble and therefore are more readily absorbed in the body from Krill Oil, instead of the triglycerides contained in Fish Oil. A significant component of Krill Oil is astaxanthin-an antioxidant-and the algae that the krill feed on. Astaxanthin is the ingredient that gives shellfish and crustaceans their dark pink hue.

Are Testosterone Boosters The Same As Steroids?

No, not at all. While testosterone boosters are made from natural ingredients such as Maca Extract 4/1; Eurycoma Longifolia Extract; Korean Ginseng; Reishi; Saw Palmetto; Muira Puama, Oyster and Sea Cucumber; anabolic steroids are produced in laboratories and are chemically based. Anabolic steroids are dispensed usually in cream; gel; patch or liquid (injectable) forms. By contrast, Testosterone boosters are only taken orally and usually in the form of an easy-to-swallow capsule!

What is MACA?

Maca is the common name for the plant Lepidium meyenii and is a member of the cruciferous family such as cabbage, cauliflower and broccoli, and has traditionally been known to be an aphrodisiac increasing fertility in men and women alike.

Helps Enhance Libido & Drive

Turmeric Curcumin

What Is Turmeric Curcumin? 60 ct.

Turmeric is a plant. It is frequently used to help relieve arthritis symptoms and is a natural anti-inflammatory and powerful antioxidant.

What Are Curcuminoids?

Unlike other companies, which sell synthetic Turmeric, our product contains 95% Curcuminoids. Curcuminoids are molecules that allow your body to absorb Turmeric. Many products try to sell you on being pure Curcumin, in order for your body to absorb Turmeric, it must contain a high percentage of Curcuminoids and BioPerine® (black pepper extract).

Benefits:

The benefits of taking a high quality Turmeric Curcumin with BioPerine® may act as the following: a powerful anti-inflammatory and anti-oxidant, help reduce joint and muscle pain, help with arthritis, help to promote colon health, support a healthy neurological function and a healthy cardiovascular system while providing anti-aging benefits.

Vitamin D3 5000 IU

Why Should You Take Vitamin D3?

Vitamin D helps the human body absorb calcium, making bones stronger. When Vitamin D is deficient, calcium levels decrease, and bones are more brittle and liable to break. In adults, not getting enough Vitamin D can also increase the risk of osteoporosis.

What's The Difference Between Vitamin D2 & Vitamin D3?

There are two different forms of Vitamin D used in supplements. Vitamin D2, which is referred to as ergocalciferol; and Vitamin D3, also called cholecalciferol. Some research studies suggest that Vitamin D3 is more readily absorbed in the body than Vitamin D2.
